One morning the little Prince came bounding down the roadway and paused for a moment before the new erection. He was noticed by one of the Metropolitan policemen who travel with the Court to Balmoral, and a housekeeper, to whom the officer was talking...

Before they could shout a warning the Prince had ducked below the barrier but was out again in a moment when he discovered the treacherous nature of the ground on the other side.

The policeman and the housekeeper kept the incident secret and the concrete hardened, carrying the permanent impression of a boy's boot.

Last' year, it seems, the expoliceman broke the silence of nearly a quarter of a century. He mentioned what he had seen to some American visitors. From On Berlinthis spark a torch was lit to be borne across the Atlantic, and there to spread a flame of gossip from State to State.
